WATER AND SEWERAGE AUTHORITY OF TRINIDAD AND TOBAGO

WASA is pleased to announce the appointment of its new Executive Leadership Team tasked with the duty to drive the transformation of the organization.

The Water and Sewerage Authority's Board of Commissioners is pleased to announce the appointment of the Authority's new Executive Management Team. The nine-member team will be led by newly appointed Chief Executive Officer, Keithroy Halliday, and brings together a wealth of experience and expertise to the ongoing transformation of the Authority. The team will officially assume duties on November 1. The members are as follows:

CEO: Former General Manager of the Barbados Water Authority (BWA), a position he held for the past seven years, during which he played a pivotal role in transforming that organization. He will assume office on November 1 and will lead the restructured nine-member senior leadership team at the Water and Sewerage Authority. "I am excited and committed to transforming the Authority into an organization for which its employees are proud to work, and with which its stakeholders and all its customers across Trinidad and Tobago are pleased to do business. We will only get there by the efficient provision of water to all."

Director Corporate Finance: A seasoned financial strategist, Ms. Ammon joins the Authority with an extensive background in financial management and sustainable budgeting practices. "The opportunity to contribute to the transformation of the organization that manages our nation's most critical natural resource is very exciting. I look forward to adding value to the team and my country."

Director People, Transformation and Central Services: With a strong background in Human Resource Management, Strategy and Employee Relations, Mr. Derrick will be instrumental in giving life to this new portfolio. "I look forward to joining the Water and Sewerage Authority (WASA) as a Director and I am committed to driving organizational change with a focus on ensuring reliable water supply for all. I am eager to collaborate with the WASA team in this transformative journey."

Director of Technology, Future Systems and Sustainability: Ms. Romano, known for her servant leadership, is a visionary leader with two decades of senior management experience, committed to driving digital transformation, enhancing business value, and promoting sustainability in water management. “I am excited for the opportunity to serve the people of my country by providing a consistent and reliable supply of water by leveraging digital technology.”

Director Water Management Services (North East): A driven executive, Ms. Ali has more than two decades in the water sector. With sleeves rolled up she has been part of major transformational developments occurring in the organization with a promise of enhanced efficiency, improved water service delivery, and a stronger commitment to customer satisfaction. "I am very enthusiastic about WASA's transformation and honoured to be part of the executive team driving this change.”

Director Water Management Services (North West): Mr. Romain has held the reins of the Authority as acting CEO for the past two years. He has navigated several challenging situations during his time at the helm. The Authority is delighted to have him continue participating in the transformation of the Authority. “I see this as national service and look forward to working with the new team, as we continue our journey towards performance excellence.”

Director Water Management Services (Central): An innovative leader with years of experience in the management of people, processes and projects, Ms. Bailey is passionate about driving the strategic transformation agenda of the Authority, to bring about customer-focused advancements through the successful delivery of water sector improvement projects. “I am grateful for the opportunity to be of service and look forward to the challenge ahead.”

Director Water Management Services (Tobago): Mr. Williams is the Authority’s Lead in Tobago. His appointment as Director will no doubt further empower him to build on the work done previously to ensure more water is available to more people. “I have seen the transformation in action here in Tobago and it is an honour and privilege to serve the people in this new capacity.”

Director Water Management Services (South): His passion for the delivery of water and wastewater management excellence in Trinidad and Tobago drove Mr. Jaggermath to join the Water and Sewerage Authority 24 years ago. “I look forward to my new role, leading from the ground up to improve operations and to undertake the necessary transformation required for improved customer satisfaction within my region.”

“We are delighted to welcome this exceptional team and eagerly await their formal assumption of duty,” said WASA Chairman, Ravindra Nanga. “Each member brings unique strengths and a shared vision of sustainability, innovation, and a deep-seated desire to supply a 24/7 pipe borne water supply for all. Together, they will guide us through the challenges ahead, ensuring we meet the needs of all stakeholders in an agile and customer centric manner.”
